° FBIS and the Air Force Foreign Technology Division (FTD) have implemented the first of an anticipated series of cooperative arrangements in the exploitation of S&T open literature. FBIS has begun publishing in the JPRS report series pertinent items from FTD's Soviet News Abstracts Publication (SNAP). SNAP contains timely translations of many items that FBIS would normally select for processing. The new arrangement will make the information available to more consumers, at the same time saving FBIS the cost of translating the items.

The Embassy's request was prompted by the appearance in PRAVDA and IZVESTIYA of a TASS report quoting Japanese sources on the desirability of taking Chinese ballistic missiles into account.

° FBIS has added as a recipient of the FBIS Wire Service the Department of Commerce's Office of Intelligence Liaison.

DCI Weekly

Office of the Inspector General

25X1 By all accounts we had a very successful office conference this week. The DDCI was the keynote speaker on Monday evening and the Director, Office of Communications, joined us on Tuesday evening. Our collective assessment of the four-month inspection cycle was quite favorable and during the two and one-half days of discussion many new ideas for improving the inspection process were developed. We will be implementing some of these new approaches during the coming months.

DCI WEEKLY

PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

George Lauder is on annual leave and is expected to return on Wednesday, 13 June.

Media Relations

Media interest in our relations with Congress and reporting on covert action remains high. Our strategy for the moment is to say as little as we can get away with by re-directing media queries to the committees themselves.

U.S. News and World Report is expected to feature the Agency in a cover story in next week's edition. Copies will be available Monday morning.

Academic Relations

Nine college presidents are expected next Friday for their scheduled day of briefings at CIA. To assist you with your welcoming remarks, we will forward pertinent notes early next week.

One of the challenges of coordinating academic affairs Agency-wide is the maintenance of a current, comprehensive list of useful contacts at academic institutions. Real progress was made last week when we obtained 25 trip reports written by DDI officers who have engaged in campus recruiting this year. While the contacts are useful in themselves, it is also of value to know more about the recruiting climate and attitudes toward the Agency. Hats off to the DDI for providing us this data, which will be widely shared.

Presentations

In addition to the weekly overview briefing on CIA given to new employees, Public Affairs Officers:

+ Briefed the NSA cryptologic mathematicians;

+ Briefed the CIA Mid-Career Course;

+ Participated in a panel on consumer relations at an intelligence symposium at the Air Force Academy; and

+ Lectured on producer-consumer relations at the Intelligence Process Seminar in Los Angeles.
